

The Kingdom of Auah writes and speaks a language called Auahkey. Eons before now, they were a physical, biological species like yours.

They survived their primitive nuclear crisis as your race has done so far, but eventually an ultimate crisis faced them down. Most of them perished, but a remnant faced the crisis with what you would call magick, achieving a mind over matter existence.

They encoded themselves into the fabric of reality itself by obsessively focusing all of their mental and emotional energy into a small set of glyphs drawn from the shapes of their world, with the deepest parts of their linguistic reality drawn from elements of their own form.

They were able to bring such absolute clarity and integrity into their psyches that they became the very encoding of the Universe.

Now of course this is a mythological type of story, but have you heard the phrase

"write the law into your hearts"

?

Can you imagine what the state of the human experience would be if our minds and hearts were completely free of confusion, conflict and paradox?

What if a Universal, Human encoding system is possible?

What if we could place ourselves in the quantum domain itself?

We live in a matter over mind situation now, science.

Wouldn't a mind over matter reality be better?

